

To Whom It May Concern,

I am writing this letter to express my interest in the Camp Counselor position you advertised on the Carleton University Careers Website. Having considered the job requirements, I am convinced that we will be a perfect fit.

I am poised to begin my fourth year at Carleton University, and intend to graduate by the end of August 2018 with an Honours degree in Computer Science. Having grown up in Bangladesh, I am familiar with the difficulties neurodivergent children face-- particularly with regard to diagnosis and acceptance.

As the oldest in a large extended family, I have a great deal of experience working with children, and would like to spend my summer in the service of children and adults. Although I have not had the opportunity to work with children outside my family, I have devoted much of my time to music, which can be a valuable therapeutic tool; consequently, I sing and play several instruments, including guitar, tabla, keyboard, and drums.

I have a proven record of responsibility, integrity and commitment to my goals, and I firmly believe that your needs and my skills will prove an excellent match. Given the opportunity to work at your camp, I will do my best to provide the campers with a nurturing and accepting environment in which to grow and be their best selves. Thank you for taking the time to consider my application. I look forward to hearing from you soon.

Warm Regards,

Tanvir Islam
